Who He is

All He has done

All He has given us

All that awaits us

in Christ Jesus.

Gratitude grows as we come to know God.

We thank Him for daily bread, answered prayer, friendship and countless ordinary kindnesses.

Yet Scripture draws our attention deeper, to God Himself and the blessings that are ours through Jesus Christ.

These reasons for thanksgiving remain even when life is painful. We may bring our grief, confusion and unanswered questions to God while thanking Him for what suffering cannot take away.

1. His Son

The extraordinary gift of Himself

"But God demonstrates His own love toward us, in that while we were still sinners, Christ died for us." Romans 5:8

Romans 5:8; 1 John 4:9–10, 19; Ephesians 1:3–7, 12–14; Colossians 1:13–14; Romans 11:36

Jesus is God's gift to us: the Saviour we needed, the gift we could never deserve. Our redemption came at the cost of His life. While we were still sinners, Christ died for us. Before we knew Him or learned to love Him, He loved us first.

This love reaches back beyond our beginnings. God chose us in Christ before the foundation of the world. Before we drew our first breath, He had purposed our salvation in Christ. In time, the Father sent His Son to accomplish it.

Through Christ's finished work on the cross, God has rescued us from the domain of darkness and brought us into the kingdom of His beloved Son. In Him, we have redemption and the forgiveness of sins. Every spiritual blessing we enjoy is ours in Christ: our acceptance before God, our adoption into His family, the gift of His Spirit and our eternal inheritance. We could earn none of these. We receive them through the Saviour who gave Himself for us.

We could spend a lifetime exploring the riches that are ours in the incomparable Jesus. Every spiritual blessing comes to us in Him, freely given through His redeeming work. As we receive these riches, our hearts turn to worship: all is from Him, through Him and to Him. Our salvation, our inheritance and our thanksgiving are to the praise of His glory.

2. His Word

His extraordinary revelation and our guide for life

"All Scripture is inspired by God and beneficial for teaching, for rebuke, for correction, for training in righteousness; so that the man or woman of God may be fully capable, equipped for every good work." 2 Timothy 3:16–17

John 1:1–3, 14, 18; 2 Timothy 3:15–17; Psalm 119:105; Isaiah 40:8; John 6:68; 17:17; James 1:22

God has given us the precious gift of His Word. He has made Himself known so that we may know Him, trust Him and walk in His ways.

"In the beginning was the Word." Before creation, the Word was with God and was God. In time, the eternal Word became flesh and dwelt among us. Jesus reveals the Father, making Him known in a human life full of grace and truth.

God has also given us His written Word. All Scripture is God-breathed. Through it, He teaches us what is true, rebukes us when we stray, corrects our course and trains us in righteousness. His instruction shapes both what we believe and how we live, equipping us for every good work.

He has not left us without revelation, direction or purpose. His Word makes known His salvation in Christ and gives light for faithful living. As we receive it, we learn to recognise what pleases Him and to bring our thoughts and ways under His authority.

His Word endures for ever. Amid changing voices and opinions, we have something trustworthy upon which to rest. How precious that God should speak, preserve His truth and enable us to hear it.

His Word is truth. In a world where truth is often treated as a matter of personal opinion, God's Word remains our sure foundation. We stand on it, trusting what He has said, and we stand under it, submitting our thoughts, desires and decisions to His authority. Through His Word, He corrects us, shapes our lives and teaches us what pleases Him. Our grateful response is to receive His truth and obey it.

When others turned away from Jesus, Peter asked, "Lord, to whom shall we go? You have words of eternal life." May that be our response too: thankful hearts that remain with Christ, receive His words and obey Him.

How precious is this gift: truth upon which to rest, light by which to walk and instruction by which to live.

3. His Spirit

Our extraordinary Helper, God dwelling within us

"In Him, you also, after listening to the message of truth, the gospel of your salvation—having also believed, you were sealed in Him with the Holy Spirit of the promise, who is a first instalment of our inheritance, in regard to the redemption of God's own possession, to the praise of His glory."
Ephesians 1:13–14

John 14:16–17, 23; Deuteronomy 10:9; 1 Peter 2:9; Ephesians 1:13–14; Psalm 73:26

How extraordinary that God should make His home in us. Jesus promised His disciples the Spirit of Truth, who would remain with them and dwell in them. He also promised that the Father and the Son would come and make their home with those who love Him and keep His word. Through His Spirit, we enjoy fellowship with the Father and the Son.

Having believed in Christ, we were sealed in Him with the promised Holy Spirit. His presence marks us as God's possession and is the first instalment and guarantee of our inheritance, until our redemption is complete.

When the tribes received their inheritance in the land, the Lord declared that He Himself was Levi's inheritance. Here we glimpse the extraordinary privilege of having God Himself as our portion. Now, through Christ, we are a royal priesthood, a people for God's own possession. We already enjoy His presence through the Spirit and await the day when we shall dwell with Him in the fullness of our redemption.

We are His possession, and He is our portion for ever.

The Spirit's presence touches every part of our life with God:

He seals us for our inheritance	He is God's pledge of our inheritance, assuring us of the completion of our redemption, including the resurrection of our bodies.	Ephesians 1:13–14; 4:30; Romans 8:11, 23

How precious is this gift. The Spirit who dwells in us helps us live as God's children today while assuring us of the inheritance still to come. God has given Himself to us.

4. His Purpose

His extraordinary plan, our calling and fulfilment

"For we are His workmanship, created in Christ Jesus for good works, which God prepared beforehand so that we would walk in them." Ephesians 2:10

Ephesians 1:4–14; 2:10; Romans 8:28–30; 1 Corinthians 6:11, 19–20; 2 Corinthians 3:18

How extraordinary that God has given us a place within His eternal purpose. He is bringing all things together in Christ, things in heaven and things on earth. Our lives have meaning within His wise and loving plan, to the praise of His glory.

God's purpose begins with His gracious work for us in Christ. Through faith, we are justified, forgiven and reconciled to Him. In love, He purposed our adoption through Jesus Christ. We are also sanctified, set apart as a people who belong to Him. Before we consider the works He has prepared for us, we must recognise this identity: we are His.

Christ gave Himself to redeem us and purify a people for His own possession. His claim embraces every part of our lives: our bodies, thoughts, desires, relationships and choices. We were bought at a price and are called to glorify Him. Our allegiance belongs to Him alone, and that belonging shapes how we love and serve others.

Our growth in Christlikeness is a consequence of belonging to God. He has made us His own in Christ; from that secure identity flows our calling to live for Him. By His Spirit, He is transforming us into the likeness of His Son and enabling us to walk in the good works He has prepared for us.

Scripture unfolds the breadth of His purpose:

God's purpose	What Scripture reveals	Key passages

To unite His people in Christ	All who trust in Christ belong to one body and have access to the Father by one Spirit.	Ephesians 2:18–22; 4:4–6

To make His wisdom known through the church	Through the church, His manifold wisdom is made known to the rulers and authorities in the heavenly places.	Ephesians 3:10–11

To the praise of His glory	Election, adoption, redemption and inheritance lead to God’s praise.	Ephesians 1:6, 12, 14

God makes His purpose known so that we may understand the purpose of our own lives. We were made to know Him, love Him and live for His glory. As our desires and choices come into harmony with His will, we discover the fulfilment of living for the One who made and redeemed us.

Our purpose embraces whose we are, who we are becoming, how we live and the glory still to come.

Justification, adoption, sanctification and transformation, all to the praise of His glory. We belong to Him, and our transformation flows from that belonging.

5. His Mercy and Grace

His extraordinary provision for every day

"Therefore let's approach the throne of grace with confidence, so that we may receive mercy and find grace for help at the time of our need." Hebrews 4:16

Ephesians 1:7–8; 2:4–9; Lamentations 3:22–23; Hebrews 4:16; Psalm 5:3; 2 Corinthians 12:7–10

How extraordinary is God's mercy and grace. In mercy, He spares us the judgement our sins deserve, because Christ bore our sins on the cross. In grace, He freely gives us blessings we could never earn. We need both, every day.

God has lavished His grace upon us in Christ. Through His blood, we have redemption and forgiveness according to the riches of that grace. Our Father has blessed us with every spiritual blessing in His Son. We begin each day as people already richly blessed in Him.

His grace also sustains us in our weakness. When Paul pleaded for his thorn in the flesh to be removed, the Lord answered that His grace was sufficient and His power was perfected in weakness. The difficulty remained, but Christ's strength sustained him. We too can depend upon His sufficient grace through circumstances we find painful and hard to understand.

God's mercies are new every morning. Before we face the demands of the day, we can turn towards the One whose compassion never fails. Like the psalmist, we can bring our prayers before Him in the morning and watch expectantly.

At His throne of grace, we receive mercy and find grace to help in our time of need. We bring Him our sins, weakness and dependence, trusting His forgiveness and provision for the day ahead.

How precious to begin the day with Him: His mercies fresh, His grace lavished upon us in Christ, and His strength sufficient for our need.

6. His Character

Extraordinary, undivided and incomparable

"Every good thing given and every perfect gift is from above, coming down from the Father of lights, with whom there is no variation or shifting shadow." James 1:17

Exodus 34:6–7; John 14:9; Hebrews 1:3; Romans 3:25–26; James 1:17

How extraordinary and incomparable is our God. He is loving, holy, just, merciful, gracious, wise and faithful. Every blessing He gives flows from the perfection of who He is.

God is one and undivided. He is not made up of separate parts, and there is no hierarchy among His attributes. His love does not rank above His holiness, nor His justice above His mercy. He is perfectly and fully all that He is, always. His love is holy love; His mercy is holy mercy. Everything He does expresses everything He is.

When God proclaimed His name to Moses, He revealed Himself as compassionate and gracious, abounding in steadfast love and faithfulness, forgiving sin, yet never treating guilt as unimportant. His compassion and justice belong together in the perfection of His character.

We see this God revealed in Jesus Christ, the radiance of His glory and the exact representation of His nature. Jesus could say that whoever had seen Him had seen the Father. As we behold Jesus, we come to know the God who has made Himself known.

At the cross, His holiness, justice, love, mercy, wisdom and faithfulness shine together. No attribute is set aside so that another may prevail. God deals justly with sin while graciously providing salvation through His Son. He is just and the justifier of the one who has faith in Jesus.

This gives us a firm foundation for trust. Our circumstances change, our understanding is limited and our feelings fluctuate. God remains faithful to Himself. His power is always wise and good; His love is always holy and true. Even when we cannot understand His ways, we can rest in His unchanging character.

How precious that this incomparable God has made Himself known to us. We thank Him for what He gives and worship Him for who He is.

There is so much more to know, yet what He has revealed is enough to lead us to trust, worship and live the thankful and holy life He has called us to.

7. His Creation

The extraordinary witness to His glory

"The heavens tell of the glory of God; And their expanse declares the work of His hands." Psalm 19:1

Psalm 19:1; Psalm 104:24–30; Genesis 2:15; Acts 17:24–28; 1 Timothy 4:4–5

How extraordinary is the world God has made. The heavens declare His glory, and the earth displays the abundance of His wisdom. From the vastness of the skies to the smallest living creature, His handiwork invites us to wonder.

We encounter His generosity in sunlight, rain, food, colour, birdsong and the intricate life of the natural world. He gives us good gifts to receive and enjoy with thanksgiving. Our own breath depends upon His sustaining care.

The beauty of a landscape, the companionship of an animal or the quietness of a garden can bring refreshment to weary lives. Many seek the countryside for rest and peace. Away from daily demands, we may become more attentive to God's handiwork and more conscious of our dependence upon Him. Gratitude can deepen into joy, contentment and peace as we recognise His goodness in what He has made.

Creation points beyond itself to its Creator. Through His works, God reveals His glory and power; through His written Word, He makes known His character, His will and His salvation in Christ. The quietness of nature gives us opportunities to pause, remember His Word and respond to Him in worship.

Gratitude for His creation should also become care for His creation. The earth belongs to the Lord, and we receive its gifts as stewards. From the beginning, God entrusted humanity with responsibility to cultivate and care for what He had made. Thankfulness should shape how we treat the land, its resources and its living creatures.

Although creation suffers under the effects of sin, its beauty still bears witness to God's generosity.

We can notice, enjoy, give thanks and care for what He has entrusted to us.

How precious that the world around us offers daily invitations to recognise His goodness, rejoice in His gifts and worship its incomparable Creator.

8. His Peace

His own extraordinary peace, given to us

"Peace I leave you, My peace I give you; not as the world gives, do I give to you. Do not let your hearts be troubled, nor fearful." John 14:27

Romans 5:1; John 14:27; Philippians 4:6–7; John 16:33; Colossians 1:20; Romans 8:35–39

How extraordinary is the peace Jesus gives. In a world troubled by conflict between nations, communities, ideologies and even within families, we long for peace. People seek relief in many ways, yet the peace Christ gives has a depth and security the world cannot provide.

Jesus promised His disciples His own peace. He spoke these words as the cross approached, knowing the fear and sorrow they would face. His peace would sustain them amid trouble, rooted in their relationship with Him.

This peace begins with peace with God. Through faith in Jesus Christ, we are justified and reconciled to the Father. Christ has dealt with the sin that separated us from Him. We receive this peace by trusting the Saviour who gave Himself for us.

From that secure relationship, we can experience the peace of God. We bring our anxieties to our Father in prayer, with thanksgiving. His peace, surpassing all understanding, guards our hearts and minds in Christ Jesus.

Difficult circumstances may continue. We may grieve, feel afraid or struggle to understand what is happening. Yet we belong to the One whose love holds us securely. Our future rests in His faithfulness, even when we cannot see the way ahead. Neither suffering nor death can separate us from the love of God in Christ.

How precious to know that our deepest security does not depend upon the world becoming peaceful. Christ has made peace for us through His cross, and He remains faithful within every trouble.

Persecution, illness and loss belong to this present life. They can bring profound suffering, yet their reach is limited. Our years here are brief beside the eternity we shall spend with Christ. We find peace in knowing that our troubles will end, while His love and our life with Him will endure.

We await the new heavens and the new earth, where righteousness dwells. God will dwell with His people; death, mourning, crying and pain will be gone. His servants will see His face. The One who reigns in glory will bring us into the fullness of life in His presence.

How extraordinary is this peace: we are held by Christ today, and our future is life with Him for ever. Those extraordinary hands, wounded for our redemption, hold us now and will bring us safely into His presence. See also 2 Corinthians 4:17–18; 2 Peter 3:13; Revelation 21:1–4; 22:3–5.

9. His Family

Our extraordinary belonging, united in love

"In addition to all these things put on love, which is the perfect bond of unity." Colossians 3:14

Ephesians 1:5–10; 2:18–22; 1 Corinthians 12:12–27; Colossians 3:12–17; Hebrews 10:24–25

How extraordinary is our adoption into God's family. Before we knew Him, the Father had purposed to bring us to Himself through Jesus. Our belonging begins in His love, His initiative and the good pleasure of His will. He has made us His children, to the praise of His glorious grace.

He has also made known the mystery of His will: His purpose to bring all things together in Christ, things in heaven and things on earth. Our adoption belongs within that greater purpose. All who believe and put their trust in Jesus are welcomed into God's family. Through Christ, by one Spirit, we have access to the Father. We are members of His household.

We share one Father, belong to one body and have access through one Spirit. This shared belonging shapes how we live together.

Colossians describes us as God's chosen people, holy and beloved. From that identity flows our calling to clothe ourselves with compassion, kindness, humility, gentleness and patience. We bear with one another and forgive as the Lord has forgiven us.

Above all, we put on love, the perfect bond of unity. Love moves us to seek one another's good, carry burdens, listen patiently and remain faithful when relationships are difficult. God's family is still being transformed, and we need grace in our dealings with one another. Our unity in Christ is precious and calls for diligent care.

The Spirit gives different gifts for the good of the whole body. Some teach, some encourage, some offer practical help, and others serve with quiet faithfulness. Each member matters. We need one another, and love shapes how we use what God has entrusted to us.

The peace of Christ is to rule in our hearts, for we were called to peace in one body. The word of Christ is to dwell richly among us as we teach and admonish one another with wisdom and sing to God with thankful hearts. Our life together becomes a place where His truth is heard, His love is expressed and His goodness is celebrated.

We can thank God for those who have strengthened our faith, carried our burdens or prayed when we had little strength. We can also ask how we might become such a blessing to others, encouraging them towards love and good works.

How precious to belong to this extraordinary family, loved by the Father, redeemed by the Son and united by the Spirit. May our love for one another make His goodness visible, with everything done in the name of the Lord Jesus and with thanksgiving to God our Father.

How extraordinary: our adoption by the Father through Christ, and our shared life in the Spirit, with love as the perfect bond of unity.

10. His Promises

His extraordinary faithfulness, our guaranteed hope

"Let's hold firmly to the confession of our hope without wavering, for He who promised is faithful;" Hebrews 10:23

Numbers 23:19; Ephesians 1:13–14; 2 Corinthians 1:20; Hebrews 10:23; 11:6

How extraordinary are God's promises, because of the One who has made them. He is faithful and unchanging. People may break their word or promise what they cannot deliver. God remains true to everything He has spoken. His promises rest upon His character, and their fulfilment is secure in His hands.

There are times when we long to understand what He is doing, yet understanding does not come. Scripture encourages us to seek wisdom, but our trust cannot depend upon receiving an explanation for every circumstance. We can trust the God who knows what we cannot see and faithfully fulfils His word.

Without faith, it is impossible to please Him. Those who draw near must believe that He exists and that He rewards those who seek Him. We honour Him as we take Him at His word, trusting His goodness even while our questions remain.

God's promises find their fulfilment in Christ. For our present journey, He promises His presence, wisdom when we ask in faith, and grace sufficient for our weakness. We can bring our needs before Him, confident that He hears and faithfully cares for us.

His promise comes with a guarantee: His own Holy Spirit. Having believed the gospel, we were sealed in Christ with the promised Spirit. He is the first instalment and guarantee of our inheritance, until the redemption of God's own possession. The promised Spirit has already been given; the fullness of our inheritance still awaits us.

That inheritance gives us a sure and living hope:

Our hope	What God has promised	Scripture
Resurrection glory	Our bodies will be raised imperishable and transformed to be like Christ's glorious body.	1 Corinthians 15:42–54; Philippians 3:20–21
Completed redemption	We await the redemption of our bodies, assured by the Spirit already dwelling in us.	Romans 8:23–25; Ephesians 1:13–14
Likeness to Christ	We shall be like Him, because we shall see Him as He is.	1 John 3:2–3
An unfading inheritance	Our inheritance is imperishable, undefiled and unfading, kept in heaven for us.	1 Peter 1:3–5
Life for ever with Him	Christ will gather His people to Himself, and we shall always be with the Lord.	John 14:2–3; 1 Thessalonians 4:16–18

Our hope	What God has promised	Scripture
Creation restored	Creation will be freed from decay. We await new heavens and a new earth, where righteousness dwells.	Romans 8:19–21; 2 Peter 3:13
The end of death and sorrow	God will wipe away every tear. Death, mourning, crying and pain will be gone.	Revelation 21:3–4
Seeing His face	We shall serve Him, see His face and live in His light.	Revelation 22:3–5

Our thanksgiving reaches both backwards and forwards. We remember His faithfulness in promises fulfilled, and we thank Him for the fulfilment still to come. This hope sustains us through persecution, illness, loss and unanswered questions. Our suffering belongs to this present age; our life with Christ will endure for ever.

We can thank Him today for resurrection glory, for our completed redemption and for the day when we shall see His face. Our confidence rests upon the unchanging God, whose Spirit guarantees our inheritance.

How extraordinary is this sure hope.

His promise comes with His guarantee, and our future is secure in Him, all to the praise of His glory.

A daily posture

We do not have to feel cheerful or understand our circumstances before we can give thanks. We begin with what God has revealed: the Father has loved us, the Son has redeemed us, and the Spirit dwells in us. We belong to Him.

His Word gives us truth upon which to stand and authority under which to live. His purpose gives our lives direction. His mercies are new every morning, and His grace is sufficient for our need. His unchanging character invites our trust, His creation displays His goodness, and His family gives us people to love and encourage. Through Christ, we have peace with God and a sure hope that reaches beyond this lifetime.

Our thanksgiving remembers His faithfulness and anticipates the glory still to come. His promise carries His own guarantee: the Holy Spirit, the first instalment of our inheritance.

As these truths take root, gratitude shapes how we live: trusting His promises, obeying His Word, loving His people and caring for what He has made.

How extraordinary is our God. From Him, through Him and to Him are all things. May our lives be an offering of thanksgiving, to the praise of His glory.

A daily prayer

Father, how extraordinary is Your love. Before we knew You, You purposed to bring us to Yourself through Your Son. Thank You for Jesus, for His finished work on the cross, and for every spiritual blessing You have given us in Him.

Thank You for making us Your own and giving us Your Spirit. Help us to live from the assurance that we belong to You. Transform us into the likeness of Jesus, and lead us in the good works You have prepared for us.

Teach us to stand on Your Word and under its authority. Guard us from shaping truth around our opinions. Give us understanding, humble hearts and willing obedience, so that our lives may please You.

Each morning, draw us near to receive Your fresh mercies and find grace for the day ahead. When understanding does not come, strengthen our trust in Your unchanging character. In suffering, let Your peace guard our hearts as we rest in those extraordinary hands wounded for our redemption.

Open our eyes to Your goodness in creation, and make us faithful in caring for it. Clothe us with compassion, patience and forgiveness. Above all, teach us to love Your family and cherish the unity You have given us.

Thank You for the promises You have fulfilled and the glory that still awaits us. Thank You for Your Spirit, the guarantee of our inheritance. Keep our hope fixed upon the day when our redemption is complete and we shall see Your face.

Receive our thanksgiving and our lives as an offering pleasing to You. All is from You, through You and to You. To You be the glory for ever.

In Jesus' name, Amen.
